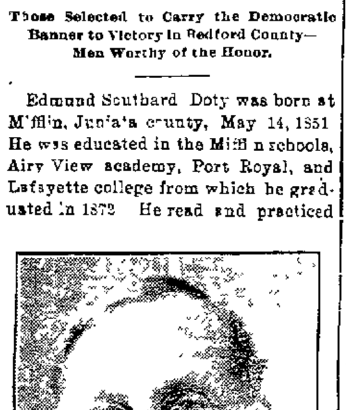
BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

Those Selected to Carry the Democratic Banner to Victory in Bedford County—Men Worthy of the Honor.

Edmund Southard Doty was born at Mifflin, Juniata county, May 14, 1851 He was educated in the Mifflin schools, Airy View academy, Port Royal, and Lafayette college from which he graduated in 1872 He read and practiced law with his father, was assistant district solicitor for the Pennsylvania railroad company and finally turned his attention to the banking business. He came to Bedford in 1890 and became cashier of the First National bank, which position he now fills



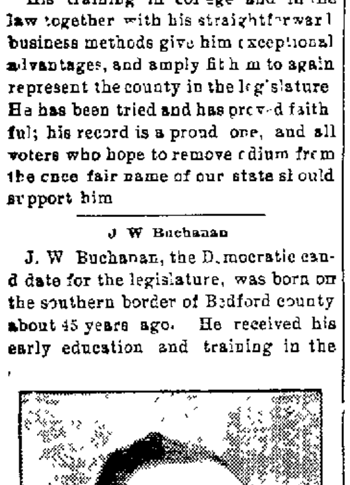
EDMUND S DOTY.

Mr Doty was elected to the house of representatives in 1898 and re-elected in 1902. His record in the house at Harrisburg has been such as to bring honor to the district. His opposition to the notorious "Press Muzzler" won words of praise from many papers and public men in the state and his fight for an amendment to the bill that fixed the minimum of teachers salaries in the state at $35 showed conclusively that he was looking to the interest of those poorer districts of the state in which the additional salary is proving so burdensome

His training in college and in the law together with his straightforward business methods give him exceptional advantages, and amply fit him to again represent the county in the legislature He has been tried and has proved faithful; his record is a proud one, and all voters who hope to remove odium from the once fair name of our state should support him

J W Buchanan

J. W Buchanan, the Democratic candidate for the legislature, was born on the southern border of Bedford county about 45 years ago. He received his early education and training in the public schools and later attended the normal schools at Cumberland, Bedford and Schellsburg He followed the teaching profession for a number of years, but at present is one of the most extensive farmers and lumber dealers in the county He is now operating two large saw mills and is employing quite a number of men.



J W BUCHANAN

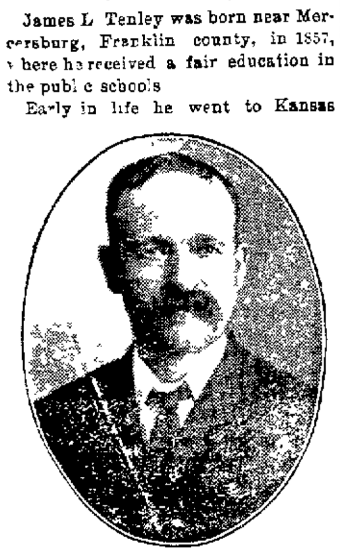
Mr. Buchanan has served in minor offices in his district and is now serving his third term as justice of the peace. He has always been identified with the Democratic party and has been an honest and faithful worker for the party's welfare.

Mr. Buchanan is a gentleman in every sense of the word and is esteemed for his manly traits and high ideals by all who know him. No mistake can be made by sending to the legislature of the state this intelligent, thrifty and conscientious gentleman, possessed of good judgment and high ideals—the qualities that are requisite to a member of the state legislature.

James L Tenley

James L Tenley was born near Mercersburg, Franklin county, in 1857, where he received a fair education in the public schools

Early in life he went to Kansas where he was engaged in business for about two years.



JAMES L TENLEY.

Mr. Tenley has been a resident of Broad Top township for 24 years. His sterling qualities are recognized wherever he is known. He has served his district in the offices of auditor, constable and justice of the peace, the latter of which offices he now holds.

Mr. Tenley has been engaged in farming and lumbering, in both of which he has demonstrated his business ability His sound judgment and integrity amply fit him for the office he now seeks. He will make a fearless and conscientious official, as associate judge

G W. Blackburn.

George W Blackburn, the Democratic candidate for county surveyor, is a resident of New Paris and is about 50 years of age. For many years he was one of the prominent teachers in the public schools of the county. He left the teaching profession about five years ago, and since that time has given his attention to surveying almost exclusively. Many tracts of coal and timber land in Somerset county have been surveyed by Mr. Blackburn.

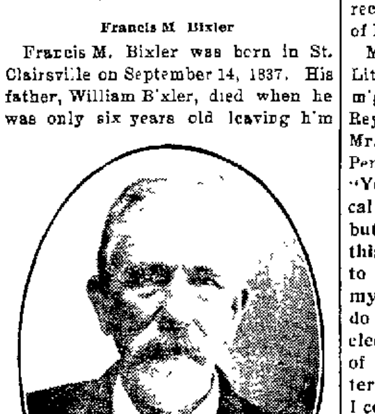
The largest single job of surveying in this county was done by Mr. Blackburn in June last when he surveyed and plotted the 32 tracts of the Peter Mowry estate.

Mr. Blackburn has always been intimately connected with the educational interests of the county. He has been justice of the peace in New Paris for almost 20 years, which tells too plainly the esteem in which he is held by those who are most intimately acquainted with him.

His unquestioned ability to fill the office for which he is a candidate commends him to the voters of the county, and if elected his accurate and painstaking work will demonstrate the wisdom of the choice

Francis M Bixler

Francis M. Bixler was born in St. Clairsville on September 14, 1837. His father, William Bixler, died when he was only six years old leaving him with two sisters and one brother to the care of their mother who was poor financially, thus compelling him to be thrown out upon the world early in life. He lived among the farmers of his community until he was 15 years of age and then drifted into Lebanon county, where he learned the trade for which he is famous, that of blacksmithing and wagon-making for which he is known nearly all over the county



FRANCIS M. BIXLER.

Mr. Bixler has been a life long Democrat, casting his first presidential vote for Stephen A. Douglas. While not a radical politician he has been loyal to the principles of Democracy. Mr. Bixler has never asked for any office at the hands of his party although he has served as school director, judge of election and in different township offices, all of which he filled with credit to himself and satisfaction to his party Mr. Bixler is a man of spotless character and good sound judgment He is a man who is fearless and honest and one whom any one need not hesitate to support, regardless of party affiliation. If he is elected to the office of director of the poor he will perform the duties of his office in a fearless, honest and conscientious manner.

Reynolds' Insult to Foreigners

Editors of The Gazette, Bedford Pa.

GENTLEMEN —Some articles in last week's papers prompt the writing of the following facts, which I hope you will publish. Mr. Reynolds attempts to insult the foreigners who come over to our country and help in our large industrial enterprises The people have only to look at the "shacks" back of the Riddlesburg furnace to see how he and his associates in business regard foreigners and how he makes good his words, in which he refers to them as being able only "to reply to questions with hog-like grunts." This explains why he puts them in such "shacks" Reynolds has evidently failed to read history or he would not have forgotten that a lot of foreigners helped to win our independence, such as Pulaski, a Polander, who entered the revolutionary army as a volunteer, became brigadier of cavalry, was wounded in battle and gave his life for our freedom; Steuben, a Prussian, who drilled and disciplined Washington's soldiers at Valley Forge into a strong army, and spent his fortune to his last dollar in clothing and feeding the soldiers; Kosciusko, a Polish general, served on Washington's staff as colonel of engineers. Washington was not afraid of foreigners, but Reynolds evidently counts himself a bigger man than George Washington. Lafayette was a foreigner. In our recent great war, were not Sigel, Heinselman, Schurz, and hosts of others, Germans; Phil Sheridan, Shields, Owens, and hosts of other heroes, Irishmen?

A Republican congressman made a bad break last winter when he spoke of foreigners as "hoodlums", but Reynolds makes a worse break when he compares them to "hogs" But the people who are familiar with his exaggerated and low abusive language will not be surprised. Did he not recently refer to men like McNamara and Fletcher as "curs" and "hounds"?

Reynolds has never made a campaign, to our knowledge, without indulging in abuse, falsehoods and questionable methods. The people should rebuke such a man and his lieutenants by defeating them in November.

Very truly,

REPUBLICAN.

RECREANT REYNOLDS.

Political and Personal Promises Alike Are Broken.

E. M. PENNELL BETRAYED.

How the Boss Became Chairman of the Republican County Committee—Bedford Legislated Out.

At the Republican primaries in 1901 Bedford county endorsed E. M. Pennell, Esq , for the office of president judge.

The legislature was in session and a general Judicial Apportionment bill making of Bedford a separate judicial district had passed the house on third reading and the senate on second reading, and on the day before the primaries telegrams from Mr. Snyder, Speaker of the senate, were circulated over this county stating that the Judicial Apportionment bill would certainly pass the senate on third reading and be approved and Bedford county would have its own judge.

On the day of the county convention Boss Reynolds became an active candidate for chairman of the Republican county committee and Mr. Pennell opposed his election because he believed Reynolds did not mean to be true to him, and Alvin L Little, Esq, became Mr. Pennell's candidate for chairman.

The convention was in session in the court house. Mr Reynolds called Mr Pennell into the grand jury room and protested that he had no unfriendly motives in seeking the chairmanship, that he had been beaten for congress the year before and only wanted the chairmanship as a mere matter of recognition, and made strong pledges of loyalty and support

Mr Pennell then called Alvin L. Little, Esq , into the room that there might be no misunderstanding as to Reynolds' position. In the presence of Mr. Little, John M. Reynolds took Mr. Pennell by the right hand and said, "You know I sometimes make political promises I don't intend to keep, but this is not a political promise, this is a personal promise, made man to man. Withdraw opposition to my election as chairman and I will do all in my power to promote your election. I can bring to you elements of strength (meaning the liquor interests) you could not otherwise get. I could not afford to be elected chairman and not support the ticket."

Opposition to Reynolds was withdrawn. He was unanimously elected chairman of the county committee and made a ringing speech to the convention. Dramatically placing his right hand over his heart he pledged his support to the ticket. Scores of men are living who heard that speech The convention adjourned and immediately Chairman Reynolds hastened to the depot and took the same train east with the delegates, and himself went direct to Harrisburg, where he labored for days to have the judicial apportionment bill changed, and Bedford was attached to the already existing district of Huntingdon and Mifflin. Pennell's victory was brought to naught and a Democrat was brought in to preside over our courts.

And now that the Hon. John M Reynolds' part in that betrayal of his trust has been found out he resorts to the old trick of quieting his conscience by abusing the man whom he pledged his word to help and then betrayed.

This base and ignoble betrayal of one to whom he made a personal promise of support and followed that promise with a speech to the convention declaring his intention to do so is enough to drive honest men from beneath the shadow of his banner of treachery Shall we send to congress a man who will keep neither political nor personal promises?

"He who ofttimes has deceived,
Though truth he speaks is scarce believed."

His excuse for attaching Bedford to the Huntingdon-Mifflin district is dealt with editorially in this issue

Mr. Doty of Bedford

"Among the representatives in the last legislature who were conspicuously faithful to their public obligations was Edmund S. Doty, of Bedford. Earnest, honest, and industrious he never failed to cast his influence and vote against bad legislation and in favor of good. A keen intelligence and thorough learning in the law enabled him to discern the right and a splendid courage and active conscience influenced him to prompt and vigorous support of it Mr. Doty is one of the few officials who estimate public office as a "public trust"

"Mr. Doty has been nominated by the Democrats for re-election to the legislature and his candidacy has been endorsed by a citizens' organization of considerable proportions. Of course he will be elected for any other result of the vote would reflect on the intelligence and integrity of the people. It would imply a disapproval of fidelity and a penalty for good service. The people of Bedford county will not thus stultify themselves. The slavery to partisanship is not so complete in that "garden spot of Pennsylvania."

"Representative Doty is bitterly opposed by the machine and every exertion will be made to defeat him by that piratical organization Able and conscientious men are not wanted in the legislature by those who have schemes to despoil. But the people of the state want such men to make their laws and Representative Doty is foremost among them Our information is that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority We hope that expectation will be fulfilled for it will be good for the state and creditable to that constituency "—Harrisburg Star-Independent, October 8

As He Appears to Others.

"The voters of the Bedford, Blair, Cambria district ought to defeat John M. Reynolds for congress. Reynolds is a renegade Democrat and only became a Republican in 1896 Up to that year he held every office he could get as a Democrat. No self-respecting Democrat in the district can afford to vote for him, and every decent Republican ought to be ashamed to."—Clearfield Republican, October 7.

Water of Sulphur Spring Is Pure.

A report became prevalent during the summer that the sulphur spring at the Springs hotel was contaminated with foreign substances which made it unfit for use. The statement of the eminent chemists, which is given herewith, removes all doubt as to the condition of the spring.

PHILADELPHIA, September 30, 1904.

Mr H E Bemis, Manager, Bedford Springs, Penn'a

DEAR SIR —I have examined the sample of water from the sulphur spring for the presence of nitrates and nitrites, and fail to find even traces of either, thus showing absence of organic contamination in this spring.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) CHARLES H. LAWALL,
Analytical Chemist.

I saw the above tests made, and am of the same opinion as expressed above.

(Signed) PROF. HENRY LEFFMANN,
Chemist.

Mrs. Bowman Missing.

Mr. Bowman, of Imlertown, Bedford county, Pa., was upon the passenger train arriving in this city at noon today making inquiries about his wife. Mr. Bowman stated that his wife and two year old child had mysteriously disappeared from their Bedford county home two weeks ago, and he had not been able since then to learn anything of their whereabouts. He does not believe his wife has done anything violent and says he cannot imagine why she left home She did not take any money or property of consequence with her. The husband is searching Bedford county in the hope of finding his spouse.—Cumberland Times, October 11

Turner-Diehl.

At the Reformed parsonage, Schellsburg, October 6, Howard Alvin Turner and Miss Ellenor Diehl, both of Juniata township, were united in holy matrimony by Rev. D. G Hetrick, at 6 p. m

Sams-Davis.

A quiet little wedding was celebrated at the Reformed parsonage in Everett, Monday evening, October 10, when Rev. J David Miller, pastor of Trinity Reformed church said the words which bound for life the destinies of Edgar Sams and Miss Lucy E. Davis, both of Earlston.

Reunion 22nd Pa. Vol. Cav. Postponed.

The annual reunion of survivors of 22nd Pa. Vol. Cav. was to be held this year October 21 at Mapleton, Huntingdon county, Pa , M. L. Rex of Co I, being president for the year. Comrade Rex has had so much sickness in his family that he could not make such arrangements for entertaining the visitors as he desired, and because of this, and because of an epidemic of scarlet fever prevailing in Mapleton, it has been decided to have no reunion this year. A reunion will be arranged for next year, to be held probably at Mapleton, of which due notice will be given. A. R. MCCARTHY, S'c'y,

Mount Union, Pa., Oct. 10, 1904.

THE FINAL SUMMONS

Those Who Have Gone to the Great Beyond.

THE DEATH RECORD.

John Shaffer, John M. Simons, J. M. Zembower, Bertha Mowery and Mrs. Anna L. Kensinger.

John Shaffer, a native of Bedford, who recently returned to the home of his early youth after a long absence in the west, died at his residence on South Juliana street on Sunday at 2 p. m Eight days previous to the time of his death Mr. Shaffer, while attending to the regular duties about his home was stricken with paralysis which totally disabled him, racking both his physical powers and mental faculties and leaving his mind beclouded until the time of his death. But a few weeks ago, notwithstanding his age, he was as active and apparently as vigorous as a young man. The sad calamity which so suddenly befel him struck with surprise the whole community. The deceased was born in Bedford on October 16, 1831, and lived to be 72 years, 11 months and 13 days old. In 1858 he was united in marriage with Margaret Davis, of this place, who preceded the deceased to his heavenly rest eight years ago. Mr. Shaffer was a master carpenter and contractor. Much of Bedford's architecture and many of her substantial buildings stand as monuments to his skilful handiwork. Twenty five years ago he moved to Sutton, Neb., where he pursued his chosen occupation with marked success, moving from there to Geneva in the same state where he lived until his return to this place in August, 1903. Mr. Shaffer was known and remembered not only in this community but had a wide circle of friends throughout the county. He was a man of admirable character and disposition, a brother to all with whom he came in contact and a most loving and good father, nothing being asked of him by his children which he did not grant as bountifully as was within his power. His good will toward all men seemed to be unbounded while his countenance, even in death, shone with that brightness with which it beamed all through life. The deceased is survived by three sons and two daughters, namely, J. A. Shaffer, of Lincoln, Neb ; Ned, of Alliance, Neb.; W. T., of Denver, Col.; Mrs. W. U Chunard, of Chicago, and Miss Phillis, who lived with her father.

A short service was held here Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Leidy, pastor of the M. E church, after which the body was taken to Geneva where funeral services were held and interment was made on Thursday.

John M. Simons.

John M. Simons died at Cruse, October 9, of congestion of the brain after lingering three weeks with typhoid fever, aged 43 years, 10 months and eight days Mr. Simons was one of our most useful citizens. At the time of his death he was secretary of the school board and postmaster at Cruse. The family loses a devoted husband and father, the church and community a citizen whose place will be hard to fill. Interment in the Fellowship cemetery, Rev. Donaldson officiating.

He leaves to mourn their loss a widow, three daughters, two sons and his father, John Simons, Esq ; three brothers, Oliver P., of Chesthaven, W. Va ; Webster, of near Cumberland; Walter S , in the Valley, and three sisters, Mrs. John K Lightfoot, of Cumberland; Mrs. Ambrose Deffibaugh, of Mill Creek, W. Va , and Mrs. Edward Prince, of Everett. His was one of the largest funerals seen here for a long time.

J. M. Zembower.

J. Marion Zembower, of near Cruse, died October 8, of neuralgia of the bowles after but a few days suffering, aged 69 years, four months and 22 days. He was one of our most prosperous farmers and was of a quiet, inoffensive nature. Interment in the Fellowship M. P. cemetery Monday at noon, Rev. Donaldson officiating. There survive him a widow, one son and one daughter, Elmer F Zembower and Mrs Curtis Boor, both living near the old homestead Five brothers, Emanuel, in Cumberland; Franklin and Wilson near Cumberland; and Josiah A. and W. Pierce in the valley also survive. There was an over crowded house at the funeral.

Bertha Mowery.

Bertha Mowery, daughter of John Mowery, of near Bedford Springs, died Friday morning, October 7, of consumption, aged about 18 years. Miss Mowery has been in ill health for some time. She was a member of St. Thomas Roman Catholic church. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Father D. Cashman. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery on Monday forenoon.

Mrs. Anna L. Kensinger.

Died at her home in Altoona, October 6 at the age of 41 years. Deceased was born in Saxton, where she resided until 1889. The remains were brought to Saxton for interment.

Thursday at the Fair.

Despite the indications for rain and the cool weather more than six thousand people attended the county fair on Thursday of last week. The new building added to the convenience of the exhibitors and the pleasure of the sightseers. The failure of the balloon to ascend disappointed many but the games and races were satisfactory. A sad accident—an account of which is given elsewhere—cast a gloom over many who witnessed it.

In the ball game of the forenoon Bedford won from Everett by the score of 31 to 6, but in the afternoon lost to the same team, by the score of 10 to 13

In the trotting and pacing race, mile heat, three out of five, "Al McGregon," entered by R. A. Stiver, won first prize, and Yara, entered by W. I. Taylor, second.

In the running race "Brunelle," belonging to L. Hays, of Meyersdale passed under the wire first, and "Tess," owned by R. A. Stiver won second place.

CAPT. FOSTER P. WOOD KILLED

Venerable Octogenarian Struck by Running Horse.

The saddest accident in the history of Bedford fairs occurred on Thursday when Captain Wood was struck by a running horse and so badly injured that he died shortly after at the home of his son-in-law Edward S. Taft. The venerable gentleman was struck while crossing the track just prior to one of the running races while the jockey was getting ready for the race. He was bent in form and so crippled as to make it impossible to get out of the way of the approaching horse. The rider, when he saw the old gentleman, endeavored to change the course of the horse and many of those who saw the frightful accident think that he would not have been struck if he had stood still instead of taking a step forward. He either did not hear those nearby or failed to understand the alarm they gave. Mr. Wood was a resident of Washington, D C , and was a veteran of the civil war.

After brief services, held at the home of Mr. Taft, by Rev. George Leidy, of the Bedford M. E. church, the remains were taken to Washington where, after appropriate services, they were interred in Arlington cemetery, on Saturday at 3 o'clock.

Captain Foster Pulaski Word was born at Milford, Pa., May 4, 1824 His early years were devoted to lumbering interests. In 1861 he enlisted in company I, 86th regiment, New York infantry, being at the time a resident of that state, and was unanimously chosen captain of the company. He participated in Bull Run, Antietam, Gettysburg and many other battles of the great and deadly war. He had made many friends while in Bedford, all of whom sympathize with the bereaved family

Habeas Corpus Proceedings.

Francis White, the jockey who ran down Captain Wood on Thursday on the race course at the fair, was arrested on Friday by Officer Beegle and taken before 'Squire Ritchey, who committed him to jail to await habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Woods on Wednesday.

At the hearing on Wednesday a number of witnesses were called, and after hearing their testimony, the court held White under $300 bail for his appearance at the November term of court to answer to the charge of involuntary manslaughter. James Corboy and Patrick Hughes went on the bond and he was released. The parents of the boy were present at the hearing. It is the concensus of opinion that the boy did all in his power after seeing Mr. Wood in the way to avoid the accident, but there is division of opinion as to whether or not the bars were closed. It is inconceivable that the boy, who never before saw the aged gentleman, could possibly have any reason that would prompt his wilfully riding over him The community laments the tragic end of the brave soldier and aged gentleman, but sympathizes with the boy whose misfortune it was to be on the track at the time

Friends Meeting at Fishertown.

A series of meetings will be held in the "Hicksite" Friends meeting house at Fishertown, October 22 and 23 First lesson begins Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. There will be addresses on the subject "The Present-Day Need of Quakerism." The afternoon meeting will be devoted to Sabbath school work and will convene at 2 o'clock

Saturday evening Dr. J. H. Holmes, of Swarthmore college, will deliver a lecture on "The Land of Judea." He has travelled through the Holy Land and will be worth hearing Admission, 20c for adults; 10c for children.

Meetings for worship will be held Sunday at 11 a m., 3 p. m. and 7.30 p. m. Ministers from Philadelphia will attend all these sessions, and all who come will be welcome.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Roosevelt's Estimate of the Farmers and Laboring Men.

SPEECH AND INTERVIEW.

All Efforts to Deny Futile—The Speech Reported in the "Journal"—The Interview Given in the "Sun."

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 11 —The Republican speakers and the press bureau of the Republican national committee are industriously denying that President Roosevelt, when he was Police Commissioner Theodore Roosevelt, in New York city, in 1896, ever said that "Mr Bryan and his adherents have appealed to the basest set in the land, the farmers."

Here are the facts and also some extracts from an interview that will prove interesting reading: At a rally of the Sound Money club at the Wool Exchange in New York city, October 27, 1896, the leading speakers were General Horace Porter and Police Commissioner Theodore Roosevelt Mr Roosevelt had but recently returned from a stumping tour of the west, in which he had devoted much time to Illinois In the course of his speech at this Sound Money club meeting at the Wool Exchange, he said:

"I shall confine my remarks to what General Porter has said about patriotism. Patriotism comes first and I hope you will not fail to display it next Tuesday.

"Mr Bryan and his adherents have appealed to the basest set in the land, the farmers If they are not so, then why do they believe that he can make a dollar out of fifty cents? He tells them that it can be brought about by a free royalty—the right to burn and plunder without the interference of the police

"But this man back of Bryan, Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, is far more dangerous than the boy who is anxious to precipitate another civil war. Altgeld typifies the danger that walks in the night. He talks much, preaches repudiation, but takes every penny from his employees."

In the course of this speech he also said that the delegates to the convention that nominated Altgeld were made up of murderers, horse thieves, burglars, libertines, crooks of all kinds—men who had been convicted of crimes ranging from pocket picking to arson.

(The report of this speech was taken from the New York Journal of October 28, 1896)

It appears that this speech was not reported in any of the Republican papers of New York, but this is not unnatural because the time was near the close of the campaign and so much political news was going that much of it had to be omitted. However, the sentiments of the speech were expressed on the same day that the speech was delivered and printed as an interview in the New York Sun of the same day that the New York Journal published the report of the speech.

Extracts from the interview follow: In October, 1896, after a stumping tour, chiefly through Illinois and Michigan, Theodore Roosevelt, then police commissioner of the city of New York, gave a column interview to the New York Sun. This interview was evidently as carefully considered as Mr. Roosevelt ever considers anything. It was published in the New York Sun of October 28, second page, third column. The Sun was then, as at present, on the same side of the political fence as Mr. Roosevelt and anxious to do him honor in exploiting his views. In the course of this interview Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Men who know that they have in them the capacity of success, and who feel the thrill of pride that comes with strong hands, stout hearts, and cool heads, do not see the necessity of being jealous of anybody. The strength of the Populists lies with the ignorant and vicious and also with the weak, who have not the intelligence to see that their failure in life is due not to others, but to themselves, but who wish to put the blame of their shortcomings on some one else."

Again—"Undoubtedly Bryan has a great hold upon the unintelligent and the vicious. He attracts that type of farmer whose gate hangs on the hinge, whose old hat supplies the place of a missing window pane, and who is more likely to be found at a crossroads grocery than behind the plow. He attracts still more the professional laboring man of the type that labors as little as possible, and continually strives to delude such workingmen as are ignorant and foolish enough to be misled into some movement which can not but end in disaster. But the thrifty, intelligent and resolute are in the majority and it was my invariable experience that men of this stamp, even if somewhat predisposed to Bryan, were repelled by the cheapness of the man. I do not like to use such a word in reference to a presidential candidate, but there is no other word that describes him so well."

One of the prominent merchants of Washington, who recently returned from a trip to the World's Fair in St. Louis, in telling of the wonders, pays this tribute to the exhibit of France: "France has the largest exhibit and the greatest variety, and it is an epitome of French life, industry and trade. Some of their exhibits are put up in a taking manner, but the installation is defective and tawdry compared with that of Germany. No one, man or woman, should fail to see the costume exhibit where the milliners and dressmakers of Paris have assembled about a million dollars' worth of gowns, hats and other garments that make 'the form divine' diviner still. The display is far beyond anything of the sort that was ever made before and is twice as large and twice as fine as was shown at the Paris exposition four years ago. But the installation is bad. The cases are cheap, the light is not properly thrown upon them and much of the effectiveness has been impaired for those reasons

"No part of the entire exposition is visited by so many people, particularly by women and girls, and you will be fascinated to follow and hear the comments of young women from the country, girls in home-made gowns and 'store hats,' as they wander in the wilderness of silks and satins, millinery and lingerie more beautiful than anything they have ever dreamed of. This display will have an educational effect like every other that is good. You may be sure that its influence will be felt throughout all this part of the country by stimulating a desire and cultivating a taste for fine things. Most of the gowns have been sold. Some of them were damaged by a cyclone in the early summer. Visitors are given books illustrated with the most attractive models and thousands of them have been carried to the homes of all classes of people in the Mississippi valley I warrant you that women folks who have visited this exposition will have more to say about the dressmakers' exhibit and remember it longer than anything else they have seen at this exposition.

"The jewelry and bric-a-brac section of the French exhibit is quite as attractive. There was never before a finer display of the jewelers' and goldsmiths' art. This section is full of novel ideas and designs and dainty effects." CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

The Russian Baltic fleet is said, by a Copenhagen despatch, to be ready to leave Libau for the far east on October 14.

In a riot among Italians at Pemberton, fifteen miles from Huntingdon, on October 9, one man was killed and two others fatally injured.

Thomas Good, about 45 years old, was instantly killed on the Hagerstown fair grounds, at the loop-the-loop, on Wednesday afternoon.

In a head-on collision between a freight and a World's Fair passenger train near Warrensburg, Mo., 33 persons were killed and many others wounded, some of whom may die.

President Roosevelt on Monday announced the appointment of Robert J. Wynne, Acting Postmaster General, as Postmaster General to fill the vacancy made by the death of Henry C. Payne.

The Japanese armored gunboat Hei Yen, according to a Tokio despatch, struck a mine in Pigeon bay, close Port Arthur, on the night of September 18 and sank. Only four of the 300 on board were rescued.

A ship recently returned from Davis' strait brings news of the safety of Captain Amundsen's Arctic expedition. The expedition left Christiana in June, 1903, for the purpose of locating the earth's magnetic pole.

Bohumil Schnepp, a Bohemian, of Cleveland, O., on Monday killed his two children, Emma and John, aged four and three years, by shooting them in the temple. He afterward went to the cemetery where his wife, who died a year ago, is buried, and shot himself in the head. His wound is believed to be fatal.

Governor Pennypacker will recommend in his biennial message to the legislature the abolition of the fat fees and perquisites of the secretary of the commonwealth, insurance commissioner and attorney general, and will suggest that the salary of the factory inspector be increased from three to five thousand dollars.

The Pennsylvania railroad company on Monday concluded a deal for the purchase of the Weems line of steamers, the Chester River steamboat company and the Queen Anne railroad company. The new company, organized to control these properties, will be known as the Maryland, Delaware & Virginia railway company. It will have a bond issue of $2,000,000, which has already been financed. In all $4,000,000 is involved in the transaction, which gives the Pennsylvania railroad company absolute control of all transportation facilities on the eastern shore of Maryland and 90 per cent. of the bay and river traffic of Maryland and Virginia.

In the Far East.

After initial retreats the Japanese have repulsed Kuropatkin's advance, and have resumed the offensive.

The Russian force which attacked Bensihu, east of Liaoyang, intending to advance south against Oyama's communications via Fengwancheng with the Yalu, has been defeated, cut off, and is in danger of capture.

Along the railroad the outcome of the battle is still undecided after three days.

Mentioned in Brief.

One hundred and ninety persons ate dinner at the Bedford House on Thursday of fair week.

THE GAZETTE went to press one day early last week, which accounts for the omission of some of the letters from our local correspondents.

Friday evening Mrs. Ella Gilchrist was given a very pleasant surprise party in honor of her birthday. The evening was spent in playing games, etc. Delicious refreshments were served.

J H. Hafer, proprietor of the Bedford House has been appointed a member of the legislative committee of the State Hotel Association. The next meeting of the association will be held at Cambridge Springs, October 27 and 28.

Mr Carroll McAfee, of Punxsutawney, is meeting with success in his efforts to establish a Banner Books Library in Bedford. This is a matter that should concern our people for its establishment will mean much to the town.

At the meeting of the East Pennsylvania eldership of the Church of God held in Shippensburg this week the following appointments were made in Bedford county: Broad Top circuit, Rev. C. W. Harry; Saxton, Rev. F. W. McGuire.

The Wight-Kulp company closed their engagement in Bedford on Saturday night by presenting A Miner's Romance. The productions of the week were enjoyed by the people of Bedford, and it is safe to say that larger houses would be given should the company return to Bedford in the future.

An Interesting Public Entertainment.

On Friday evening, October 21, at 7:45, the Loyal Temperance Legion will give an entertainment at the home of Miss L. D. Shuck, West Pitt street, for the benefit of their organization. A most excellent program of music, both vocal and instrumental, and recitations is in preparation. Other attractive novelties will be presented at that time to both entertain and amuse. An invitation is extended to the general public. Admission 25 cents. Members of the Legion admitted free.

Future Recognition.

Rev. Dr. Adams will preach two sermons on the above subject in St. James' Episcopal church, the first next Sunday morning at 10.30 and the second the following Sunday. Pews are free to all. Text, Rom. 8:19.

Election Day Tuesday, November 8.

Parker's Resume.

I have put aside a congenial work to which I had expected to devote my life in order to assume as best I can the responsibilities your convention put upon me

I solicit the cordial co operation and generous assistance of every man who believes that a change of measures and of men at this time would be wise and urge harmony of endeavor as well as vigorous action on the part of all so minded

The issues are joined and the people must render the verdict

Shall economy of administration be demanded or shall extravagance be encouraged?

Shall the wrongdoer be brought to bay by the people, or must justice wait upon political oligarchy?

Shall our government stand for equal opportunity or for special privilege?

Shall it remain a government of law or become one of individual caprice?

Shall we cling to the rule of the people, or shall we embrace beneficent despotism?

With calmness and confidence we await the people's verdict

If called to the office of president I shall consider myself the chief magistrate of all the people and not of any faction, and shall ever be mindful of the fact that on many questions of national policy there are honest differences of opinion I believe in the patriotism, good sense and absolute sincerity of the people I shall strive to remember that he may serve his party best who serves his country best.

If it be the wish of the people that I undertake the duties of the presidency I pledge myself, with God's help, to devote all my powers and energy to the duties of this exalted office

A DAY OF DUPES.

In a long column of the Inquirer John M Reynolds makes a labored effort to cover his duplicity and treachery toward the people of Bedford county and especially toward its Republicans by attacking the record of Edward M Pennell as a "bolter" Mr Pennell is not a candidate for office If he were the vote which he received when a candidate for judge over such popular opponents as Messrs Longenecker and Jordan attests his standing with the Republicans of Bedford county Can John M Reynolds say as much for his own?

As an excuse for an act of unexampled treachery toward the whole people in the county, Mr Reynolds says that he and his fellow conspirators 'could not be parties to violating the fundamental law in giving a judge to a county which did not have the population required by the constitution " What a touching regard for the fundamental law to be sure! But what are the facts?

When Somerset county was made a separate judicial district the people of Bedford county justly assumed that with its actual population of 40 000 it would also of necessity be erected into a separate district Upon this reasonable assumption the Republicans of the county entered upon an animated and in some townships a bitter contest over the judgeship with Messrs Longenecker, Jordan and Pennell as the rival candidates

Did Judge Longenecker and Mr Jordan conceive then that the county was not entitled to the judgeship? Had they done so would they have gone to all the trouble and expense of a contest? The thing is absurd Was there a whimper from Mr John M Reynolds that this would be "in violation of the fundamental law?'

He has simply invented a fundamental lie to cover an act of treachery toward the confiding Republicans of the county who had made him chairman of their county committee and thus placed him in the position to betray them Go to the journals of the legislature and see how many counties like Bedford with a little less than 40,000 inhabitants in the census and actually with more have been erected into separate judicial districts Were the legislature and the governor then guilty of violating the fundamental law?

The plain truth is that John M Reynolds, in perfect consistency with a long novitiate of treachery, sought and obtained the chairmanship of the Republican county committee for the purpose of betraying his new associates With his usual greed for place he wanted the judgeship for himself, and the only way of accomplishing his end was by hitching Bedford county to Huntingdon and Mifflin a district with a population of 100,000 Such was his tender concern for the fundamental law! The day when the Republicans of Bedford held their election for President Judge was made by Reynolds and his coadjutors a Day of Dupes

Yet the man with adamantine cheek terms E M Pennell a 'bolter' because he has too much respect for the Republicans of the county to support the trickster who has cheated and betrayed them With unspeakable hardihood the candidate of Josiah D Hicks asks them to give him a fresh token of their confidence by making him their representative in congress as a signal reward for having betrayed them It is somewhat strange that the Republicans on the borders of Blair and Cambria counties have not already gone in delegations to their brethren of the district with the record in hand of the man who has the unique prestige of having betrayed his associates of two parties in a few revolving years and is watching for fresh opportunities of political treachery The full knowledge of his character throughout the district is all that is necessary to overwhelm him with defeat

THROPP OR REYNOLDS?

In ordinary conditions the 18 000 and more Democrats of the district would have nominated one of their own party for congress and let the result take care of itself But in the existing situation they would have been wanting in political duty had they thrown their votes away upon an impossible candidate instead of uniting with a large body of Republicans to save the district from an apostate and traitor to all parties and all associates in John M Reynolds In nominating and supporting Joseph E Thropp the Democrats have sought to make no terms with him and his Republican friends They recognize in him a sturdy and uncompromising Republican who has never abandoned his political principles for the sake of preferment

Should Joseph E Thropp be elected, of which there is now the strongest probability, the Democrats expect that he will go into the Republican caucus for Speaker of the House and in all respects support the policy of his party in congress As a lifelong and consistent protectionist they expect that Mr Thropp will therefore support the tariff with as much zeal as he has ever done before What more could John M Reynolds do if he were an honest and sincere champion of Republican principles and not a mere pervert who went over to the Republican party when he conceived that there would be no more chance of office by remaining a Democrat?

What then do the Democrats gain in the election of Joseph E Thropp which the Republicans of the district and of Bedford county especially, will not gain in greater degree? Both Democrats and Republicans will have the gratification of retiring to private life a man who by his own record and confessions has no sincere political convictions and who attempts to use party merely to serve his selfish personal ends at public expense The Republicans will have in Joseph E Thropp an earnest and sturdy representative of their principles The Democrats will have in him a manly opponent who has never deserted nor betrayed his political associates Thus all parties will be the gainers by sending Joseph E Thropp to congress from this district

In answering the question whether it shall be Thropp or Reynolds the adherents of Reynolds are wheedling loudly about the immense Republican majority in the district which they pretend it is impossible to overcome To keep their courage up they boast of a majority of 10 000 by going back to elections in which large numbers of Democrats voted the Republican ticket on the monetary question These Democrats are all in line ready to cast their votes for Joseph E Thropp In the governor's election of 1902 which afforded a tolerably fair test of party strength in the district Pennypacker had a majority of a little more than 1,200 votes This majority the Republicans of Bedford county alone whom Reynolds defrauded of their rights when chairman of the Republican county committee can easily overcome But they will be joined by hundreds of Republicans in both Blair and Cambria whose pride revolts at the candidacy of a man who wants to use them as mere pawns in his political game with Josiah D Hicks as his bottle holder It needs only the united effort of the Democrats and independent Republicans to save the imperilled honor of the district All signs indicate that the Republicans of the district have become too familiar with the crooked political career of John M Reynolds to make him their representative in congress

REYNOLDS' OPEN LETTER. (IV)

"It has been falsely asserted,' says Mr Reynolds in his open letter of February of 1900, ' that I am in accord with the Republican party upon the money question alone I reiterate what I have often said in private, on the stump and by every straight Republican ballot cast since 1896, that I stand for every principle to which the Republican party is committed * * * I followed the leadership of that great tariff Democrat, Samuel J Randall * * * Whenever in party councils I have been called upon to record my vote, that vote was in favor of protection to American industry and the Dingley tariff has my ardent support today I inherited my convictions on the expansion of our territory from the teaching of Jefferson and in my first speech of the campaign of 1898 at Hyndman, I declared in favor of the retention of the Philippines * * * When I can no longer support the principles of a party I shall practice no false pretense by attempting to hold office therein "

Whether or not it has been falsely asserted that he was in accord with the Republican party upon the money question only is, indeed an open question At any rate he himself stated in the court house just prior to the election of '96 that he could no longer support the Democratic party because of its stand on the money question and he clung to Palmer and Buckner who were standing on a platform not differing essentially from the Democratic platform of that year save in the financial plank Yet in 1900 when he issued his letter to the Republicans of the district he was he says, "falsely accused "

Sufficient has already been said editorially in THE GAZETTE concerning his claim to have followed the leadership of Mr Randall, but it is in place to add that there are those living in Bedford today who have always been admirers and, in a sense, followers of Mr Randall who tell different tales On one occasion one of these gentlemen advocated the Randall tariff doctrine to Mr Reynolds in his office whereupon the now high tariff candidate struck his table and in terms more forcible than elegant declared that nothing but free trade would do

It is not complimentary to the Dingley tariff to have his support today, for there may be more alluring pastures into which he may 'jump' tomorrow, but we admire the accuracy of assertion here displayed, if he had used the today more frequently in past speeches and writings it would give to them a semblance of a quality so markedly absent in the life of one Tom Pepper

The reminder herein contained that he made a speech at Hyndman recalls the fact that he lauded the personal qualities and sterling worth of Hon Joseph E Thropp Was the whole speech an honest expression? If so there is something "rotten in Denmark today, for Mr Thropp has in no way changed his political complexion Every discerning reader knows that Jefferson never advocated the acquisition of distant islands, and if Mr Reynolds learned his ideas of expansion from the teaching of the Sage of Monticello he is not teaching that doctrine today

The assertion that he will not practice any false pretense by attempting to hold office in a party the principles of which he can no longer support is, to use one of his terms, a "daisy " The full force of it only comes when we remember that he today says he has practically been a Republican—a Randall Democrat—for thirty years, yet was an under secretary in Cleveland's second cabinet! Neither 'storied urn nor animated bust" suggests the name of a man having such "peculiar' fidelity to his party

SENATOR HOAR'S ADVICE.

Extracts from Sermon Preached by Rev Herbert S Bigelow

CINCINNATI, O , October 10 —At the Vine Street Congregational church the pastor, Rev Herbert S Bigelow, made reference to the life of Senator Hoar as follows

There would be some compensation in the death of the great man if the youth of the land would do him the reverence to reflect upon his advice ' Remember that there is something more to live for than money Turn from the race after the world's goods, the mad fight for greed, to the love of higher things "

What shall a young man read? Senator Hoar said 'Read the lives of Thomas Jefferson, Washington, Lincoln, Wendell Phillips, John Bright, Henry George and other men that have stood for something and meant something "

The death of Senator Hoar recalls that of Senator Hanna The contending forces of our civilization were strikingly typified by those towering personalities. In the largest sense of the term Senator Hoar was a democrat Senator Hanna was an ideal representative of the gross commercialism of the day Senator Hoar was great enough to rise above party to plead for the oppressed Senator Hanna, on one continent, like Cecil Rhodes on the other, was the idol of a generation that thinks only of new markets and more trade

In that larger life to which the Massachusetts senator has gone we may be sure that his first concern would not be to look up his old colleague from Ohio We think of him today in company with Mabini and Jose Rizal—the heroes and martyrs of Luzon Ten thousand slain will rise to call him blessed Eternity is a long time Happy the man who can spend it in the recollection of good deeds

Jesus or Caiaphus, Savonarola or Lorenzo, William the Silent or the Duke of Alva, Mazzini or Metternich, Garrison or Calhoun, Tolstoi or Plehve, Hoar or Hanna, civilization or barbarism, gentleness or violence, ideals or dollars—this is the choice that every man must make in his heart

One could think of pleasanter tasks than preaching liberty and humanity in the United States senate We are not surprised that Senator Hoar's appeals there should have fallen on deaf ears. He had that passion for liberty which seems to us one of our passing glories. But to the Quays and the Clarks and the Forakers, he was a man with an 'over heated conscience " Yet the voice of the senate is not the voice of God When these creatures are gone and forgotten, those glowing words of Senator Hoar will remain a living inspiration "I appeal from the spirit of trade to the spirit of liberty I appeal from the empire to the republic I appeal from the millionaire, and the boss, and the wirepuller and the manager, to the statesman of the older time, in whose eyes a guinea never glistened, who lived and died poor, and who left to his children and his countrymen a good name, far better than riches I appeal from the present, bloated with material prosperity, drunk with the lust of empire, to another and a better age I appeal from the present to the future and the past "

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE

NEW YORK, October 11 —The readers and patrons of the Broadbrim letters will do me the credit to believe that in season and out of season I have stood by the legally constituted authorities in their conflicts with the criminal classes and often when their drastic measures have exceeded their lawful powers It is not true that our city is no better than it was a year ago Our chief of police is the leader of a force of more than eight thousand well drilled men who are paid by the city between ten and twelve millions of dollars to protect the lives and the properties of our citizens and maintain their peace and safety. The chief of this magnificent force is a man of excellent character and large experience, he came into his great office under the most favorable circumstances, he was the successor of two police chiefs, one of which was a person of unquestionable character This person belonged to the old school of politics whose motto was, "To the victors belong the spoils' This gentleman's name was Devery and while in possession of his great office he succeeded in lining his wallet with shekels, guilders and dollars, he had a nice yacht, some excellent pieces of horse flesh and was generally regarded as a man in very comfortable circumstances But all good things in this world of ours have to be paid for and this Mr Devery found out to his grief when the Lexow committee sat down on him, and the result of the committee's investigation was his conviction and dismissal from office This was dreadful but in less than twenty-four hours he was taken care of by Col Murphy, and promoted to a better office with a salary of $7 000 a year The administration of the police official created intense dissatisfaction all over the city and the result was cries for reform and reorganization We have these spasmodic attacks of virtue every few months and during the time that the fever is on, we are striving to make the criminal classes almost as good as ourselves Gen Green a soldier of the civil war and a most excellent gentleman, was the next to secure the golden prize He was an honest man, a strict disciplinarian and an unqualified police success Next came Commissioner Macadoo, who was supposed to have every quality to fill the bill Early this week he issued a manifesto stating that they were growing in grace and that our entire population was much more virtuous than we were a year ago, and while the ink was getting dry upon the manifesto that he issued several crimes were committed within the limits of the city, which have no parallel in American history

A party of burglars entered a church up town by removing one of the stained glass memorial windows ten feet high and four feet wide and weighing not less than three or four hundred pounds, they then made a descent upon the kitchen utensils wrenched off the poor box, which was secured by an iron band, from its pedestal, containing $5 00 They took the altar cloth, the great Bible, some chalices of silver and gold, and got off with their plunder without even disturbing a soul A work of such magnitude must have taken a number of men to do but nobody was disturbed

The launching of the magnificent battleship Connecticut was one of the great events of the week, eminent people from all parts of the country were gathered at the Brooklyn navy yard to witness the glorious spectacle of the marriage of this warlike bride as we yielded her up to the embrace of Neptune When everything was ready the signal was given, the godmother stood ready to christen the bride and the usual bottle of champagne was raised aloft to seal the ceremony, but, alas for the defeat of all hope, the godmother failed to break the seal, fortunately it was grasped by a sailor, who covered himself with glory by smashing the bottle to pieces As the great ship slid quietly, gently into the water, cannon thundered steam whistles screamed, the music of many bands made vocal the air, the thousands gathered there roared themselves hoarse at this marine triumph, little dreaming that in that moment of magnificent victory death hovered in the air and that glorious scene, but for the merest accident, might have been changed to a horror almost without a parallel within the history of the world A short time previous to the launching it was discovered that some incarnate devil in human shape had removed some of the blocks beneath the ship, and with an ingenuity of destruction, had so arranged matters that when the great battleship started it would topple over on one side, crushing out the lives of thousands who were there to witness the spectacle and the triumph This great battle ship had cost millions, when finished it will have few competitors on the sea, what the inhuman fiend expected to accomplish by his accursed villainy, it is impossible to conceive It was also found that a large hole had been drilled in one of the armor plates When Commissioner Macadoo looks over his log book of the week's proceedings I wonder if he will think we are much more virtuous than the sinners that preceded us and who now perhaps, by saving grace, are resting in peace in the happy hunting grounds aloft

Business life seems to be awake once more, the exchanges are all open and in the alluring trusts which promise to make you in a very short time an equal of a Vanderbilt or an Astor are ready to invest all the funds that you care to lose, but as an offset to the wicked brokers our gospel ministers have all returned, every one of our churches are open, and there you have a chance to lay up treasures where "neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through nor steal "

BROADBRIM

Convincing

The late Wilhelm Jordan used to be very much annoyed because of the constant tearing up of the streets in Frankfurt One day he said to one of the men at work 'Why are you digging up the pavement again?' Because a new water pipe is to be put in " 'But the old one was still quite good ' 'So was the old Nibelung Lied yet you wrote a new one, Herr Doctor " retorted the laborer, with a laugh, in which Jordan joined.

BOOKWORMS

Not the Human Kind but the Grubs That Tunnel Volumes

Blades in his interesting volume 'The Enemies of Books' has shown that several very real bookworms are undesirable tenants of old libraries and he has studied closely several specimens sent him and described their ravages

Two grubs in particular richly deserve this name the anobium pertinax or eruditus and the oecophora The anobium a small light colored brown headed grub with a body like thin ivory or transparent wax bears a close resemblance to the white maggots of a Stilton cheese Working with a pair of strong jaws like a steel bit the grub begins at the wooden boards and if allowed will perforate the whole volume The oecophora similar to the anobium except for the possession of six legs is not unlike the so called deathwatch

M Peignot asserts that he found twenty seven volumes in one row pierced from end to end by a single worm tunnel Mr Blades doubts this but has himself seen two volumes so treated with no fewer than 212 distinct holes on one cover

PERILS OF LAND AND SEA

Captain Willnef's Remarkable Escape Shows What to Do in Time of Trouble.

For many years, Captain Willnef, says the Times of Gloucester, Mass , was one of the best known seamen in the Gloucester Fleet The sea and its dangers had no terror for him, but the catarrhal troubles with which he suffered for fifteen years made him dread the nights at sea for he had to walk the cabin floor, being unable to lie down and sleep on account of the constant catarrhal dropping

Captain Willnef went to two different hospitals for treatment, but could get no lasting benefit He constantly raised yellow and green phlegm and his trouble became so unbearable and nauseating that he was ashamed to go out in company When despairing of ever getting relief, his wife purchased a Hyomei outfit for him and trying it before going to bed, he enjoyed the first whole night's sleep for ten years Captain Willnef says 'I have used less than two bottles of Hyomei and have been cured by the remedy My friends ask me what is responsible for my improvement, and I tell them Hyomei, which has given me full and complete recovery '

Captain Willnef's experience shows our readers what to do in time of catarrhal trouble,—use Hyomei This remarkable treatment kills the germs of catarrh and makes lasting and permanent cures F W Jordan, druggist, sells Hyomei under his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not give quick relief

THE PACIFIC OCEAN

How It Came to Be So Called by the Explorer Magellan

Magellan practically the first to circumnavigate the world set out from Spain in 1519 to find a western route to the famous Moluccas or Spice Islands Vague rumors of a pacific ocean were scattered through Europe To test these Magellan following the coast of South America passed through the strait which now bears his name formerly the strait of the Eleven Thousand Virgins tossed all the time on a most tempestuous sea

Emerging into the broad waters on the west he sailed northwest for three months and twenty days on a placid almost unruffled sea which he christened then and there Mar Pacifico or Pacific ocean the name it will now forever bear Notwithstanding its name typhoons in the west and elsewhere make this ocean as perilous a path as any other to those who tempt its vast expanse and comparative solitude

Magellan himself fell in the Philippines but the Victoria came home to tell the tale Drake was the first Englishman to sail on its wide waters —London Standard

IMPRESSING THE INDIANS.

Simon Fraser's Methods With the Untutored Redskins

Even as late as the year 1805 there were Indians on the North American continent who had never seen or heard a gun, had never seen tobacco smoke and were capable of worshiping the white men who controlled these wonders The Rev A G Morice tells of some of the adventures of Simon Fraser who has stamped his name on Canada Father Morice writes as follows On landing at Lake Stuart Fraser's men to impress the natives with a proper idea of their wonderful resources fired a volley with their guns whereupon the whole crowd of Indians fell prostrate to the ground To allay their fears and make friends tobacco was offered them which, on being tasted was found too bitter and thrown away Then to show its use the crew lighted their pipes, and at the sight of smoke issuing from their mouths the people began to whisper that they must come from the land of ghosts since they were still full of the fire wherewith they had been cremated Pieces of soap were given to the women who, taking them to be cakes of fat set upon crunching them causing foam and bubbles in the mouth which puzzled both actors and bystanders All these phenomena however were soon explained away leaving profound admiration for the foreigners and their wares

Mrs Ella Foiten of Lake Fork Ill , says two bottles of Hamlin's Wizard Oil cured her brother of rheumatism after every doctor in their reach had failed 50c a bottle at all druggists.

THE SEVENTH MAN

By INA WRIGHT HANSON

Copyright 1904 by Ina Wright Hanson

We climbed to the top of the hill Sylvia and I and sat down—she in the queen's chair and I on a small rock at her feet The queen's chair so named by Sylvia is a great white rock naturally carved into a very fair resemblance of a throne Sylvia, her head set proudly on her white full neck makes a fitting queen

Sylvia's black fringed purple eyes were quiet her little mouth had pensive curves even her dimpled chin was not piquant as it sometimes nor defiant as at others Sylvia is essentially a creature of moods and her old guardian would not have her otherwise A man only yesterday was telling me the beatitudes of his wife to be

'She is always the same he babbled One always knows how he will find her A woman like that is a treasure hard to get

I thought of Sylvia and smiled It's because I never know how I am to find her that she charms me Sometimes she is a gay little butterfly flitting from one flower of speech to another sometimes she is grave as a nun I have learned though not to believe too much in Sylvia when she is grave Sometimes the wildest of crimson moods originates in a drab one

What do you see Sylvia? I asked, looking up at the dreamy face

The Sacramento river forty miles away she answered It looks like a white thread with a knot tied in it I suppose the knot is a steamboat '

I suppose it is I said absently 'Do you realize that there are only five days more

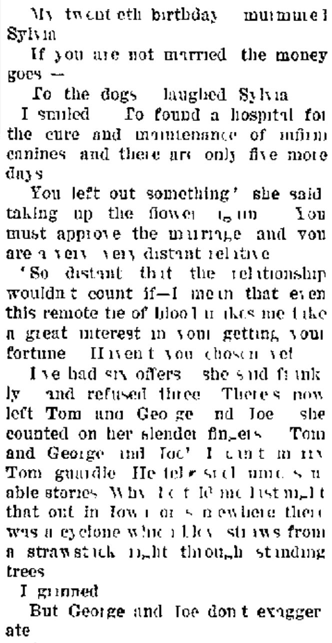
Only five days she assented, bringing her gaze back to me I thought But no

Oh The manzanita is in bloom Please bring me a piece

I obeyed as one barks to his queen but I remonstrated as one reproves a child

'It is a matter of half a million dollars Sylvia

She sighed 'Money isn't everything she said tritely She laid the pink blossom in her lap and added But money is very handy after all, isn't it guardie? Tell me about it again '



"ISN'T THERE SOME OTHER WAY?

So as one repeats a nursery rhyme to the child who knows it but who delights in its recital I told it again to Sylvia

Your mother died at your birth your father a month later leaving you no relative in the world but me An eccentric old man adopted you because he had once loved your mother and he died when you were ten years old

And you were thirty five interposed Sylvia

That doesn't come into the story I frowned This man appointed me your guardian and left a will by which his fortune becomes yours if you are married on the 15th day of March 1904

My twentieth birthday murmured Sylvia

If you are not married the money goes —

To the dogs laughed Sylvia

I smiled To found a hospital for the cure and maintenance of infirm canines and there are only five more days

You left out something' she said taking up the flower again You must approve the marriage and you are a very very distant relative

'So distant that the relationship wouldn't count if—I mean that even this remote tie of blood makes me take a great interest in your getting your fortune Haven't you chosen yet

I've had six offers she said frankly and refused three There's now left Tom and George and Joe she counted on her slender fingers Tom and George and Joe' I can't marry Tom guardie He tells such unreasonable stories Why he told me last night that out in Iowa or somewhere there was a cyclone which blew straws from a strawstack right through standing trees

I grinned

But George and Joe don't exaggerate

'George is too—well womanish He came to call on Kate the other day when I was there She was busy with her piece work that she delights in so and was showing me a crazy work quilt that she had ready to put together George sat down on the floor and laid the blocks as he thought they ought to go I don't want to marry George He would be showing me how to make the quilts his mother used to piece

Joe is truthful and manly I said almost grudgingly

Joe is a dear but I am not good enough to be a minister's wife

Nonsense! You're too good for any man on earth I said sharply

Sylvia smiled down upon me When Sylvia smiles with her purple eyes as well as her red mouth it makes one wish he were not getting gray over the temples

Do you wish me to marry any of them guardie

Something tightened in my throat but I spoke calmly very calmly

Of course your old guardian doesn't want to lose you but he is anxious for you to get your fortune and the time is very soon

Isn't there some other way? Don't lawyers sometimes make loopholes or something?

They sometimes do I answered But they can't in this case It's the dogs or a husband Sylvia, in five more days

Her eyes were looking forty miles away again and my eyes were looking at Sylvia The faintest line of color showed in her rounded cheek, it touched her dimpled chin and crept up to the bronze curl above her little ear Sylvia turned to me with the shyest of lights in her pansy eyes

There's another she faltered

Ah I heard a rustling under the manzanita bush I went down and threw a stone at it. When I went back I stood facing her

"He is the seventh man. The ancients thought there was luck in the number seven but you know the stipulation—I must approve

He is good and he has honest hazel eyes she began slowly and a splendid chin He isn't poor but I'd rather take manzanita blossoms from him if he could give me nothing else than to accept orchids from a prince I should rather live in that little two roomed house with him than with a king in his palace

There was a lilt in Sylvia's voice as she finished

But he has never asked me to marry him and I guess he never will

'He must be a darned fool then I remarked savagely

Sylvia laughed softly

That's one thing I didn't mention He is But if he doesn't ask me to, I'm going to ask him Why shouldn't I? I wish though he would ask me I should so much rather he would dearest

The last word was whispered but I heard it

You can't mean me? I croaked bewildered

For answer Sylvia left her throne and came down to me She pointed the manzanita blossoms toward the Sacramento river forty miles away

See dear The sun strikes the river and it looks like a band of gold It looks like—she hid her face on my stupid shoulder and my arms closed around her—it looks like a wedding ring

AMERICA[illegible]S

Robert Louis Stevenson Was Impressed by Their Beauty

Robert Louis Stevenson spoke in his own attractive way of the nomenclature of the states towns and rivers of our land thus And when I asked the name of a river from the brakeman and heard it was called the Susquehanna the beauty of the name seemed to be part and parcel of the beauty of the land As when Adam with divine fitness named the creatures so the word Susquehanna was at once accepted by the fancy That was the name as no other could be for that shining river and desirable valley

None can care for literature in itself who does not take a special pleasure in the sound of names and there is no part of the world where nomenclature is so rich poetic humorous and picturesque as the United States of America All times races and languages have brought their contribution Pekin is in the same state with Euclid with Bellefontaine and Sandusky Chelsea with its London association of red brick Sloan square and the King's Road is own suburb to stately and primeval Memphis

'The names of the states and territories themselves form a chorus of sweet and most romantic vocables—Delaware Ohio Indiana Florida Iowa Wyoming Minnesota and the Carolinas there are few poems with a nobler music for the ear a songful tuneful land and if the new Homer shall arise from the western continent his verse will be enriched his pages ring spontaneously with the names of states and cities that would strike the fancy in a business circular —Savannah News

The Man Who Tired Carlyle

There is a story of Carlyle in his old age having taken the following farewell in his broadest Scotch of a young friend who had had him in charge for walks and who while almost always adapting himself to Carlyle's mood had on a single occasion ventured to disagree with him I would have you to know young man that you have the capacity of being the greatest bore in Christendom The boredom had consisted solely in the rather negative sin of not having been convinced of the truth of one of Carlyle's dicta a sin all the more heinous because instead of standing boldly up to Carlyle and to claim his doctrine utterly perverse the companion had betrayed his weakness by an apologetic tone

Now Carlyle liked disciples and he respected antagonists but he could not endure being merely thwarted without being thoroughly roused He felt in that case that he had made no impression at all on his interlocutor that he had neither won him nor excited him to resistance And nothing bored him so much as that Of course it is only exceptionally despotic minds that are bored in this way —London Spectator

SENOR JIM DANDY

By MARION WOODWARD

Copyright, 1904, by M. Wood

When the American Silver company opened its mine at La Paz on concessions granted by the Peruvian government it was tacitly understood that the corporation would be "assessed" now and then for the benefit of a new revolutionary leader, but there was to be no further extortion. There was none, and the profits began to pile up.

Then there came a call from Senor Casolani. The senor was not the president of Peru nor yet the general of its army nor the admiral of its navy. He was simply Casolani, outlaw and guerrilla. When Peru was at war he was a guerrilla and aimed to kill more enemies than friends. When he was at peace he was an outlaw and robber and showed no favor. He had his headquarters in the mountains and a band of fifty cutthroats to do his bidding, and he was both feared and respected. Many attempts had been made to capture or kill him, but he always came out on top, and when bribes were offered he took the money and shot the bearers.

It was a merry life that Senor Casolani led. There was robbery in the morning, killing at noon and the sacking of a church or convent to while away the hours of evening. He lived on the fat of the land, felt that he owned all of South America, and there were times when he used to actually ache for some one to defy him. After the American mine began shipping ore that was 90 per cent pure and the stockholders had received a first dividend of 60 per cent the senor made a call at La Paz. He left his bodyguard of ten ruffians outside, entered the offices and stated his case in a soft and gentle voice. He wanted a loan of $5,000 in cash, and he didn't want to spend more than half an hour haggling about it.

"WILL YOU WALK OUT OR BE KICKED OUT?"

Old Huabasco, native assistant superintendent at the mine, had known of the senor for many years. In fact, the senor had cut off his brother's ears and his brother-in-law's head on a festive occasion, and had only missed him by a hair's breadth. With old Huabasco to plead his case, assisted by threats to call in his bodyguard and turn them loose, the senor departed a richer and happier man. Three months later he tried the same thing and won. He tried it a third time and was as courteously received.

Then the officials in New York rebelled and sent Jimmy Clayton down to La Paz to replace the other superintendent and stop the leak. The most that any of them knew about Jimmy was that he had come from a good family, had been left half a million dollars at the age of twenty-four and three years later was without a shilling to his name. He would not know a mine when he saw one, and his executive abilities had never been tested, but certain stockholders got the idea that Jimmy would be a match for Senor Casolani, and he was furnished with an outfit and shipped off to the Peruvian coast. He had been at La Paz for two weeks when old Huabasco said in confidence to the small office force, all natives:

"My children, I don't exactly understand the Senor Americano. He is soft and gentle and silent, but now and then I catch a look that reminds me of sleeping danger. I must wait until I see him in the presence of Casolani. He, too, is soft and gentle and silent, but what a devil! The Senor Americano will either prove a milksop or what they call in his country a jim dandy. Wait for a few days and we shall see."

Another fortnight passed away, and then the famous guerrilla called. This was the fourth call, and he had grown so used to the road and the humility of his receptions that he came alone. He had heard of the new superintendent and had a curiosity to see him. In his heart he respected a brave man, and as he entered the offices, carelessly switching his leg with a branch cut from a tree, he found himself hoping that Senor Clayton would show a bit of gameness. The American sat reading a newspaper with his feet on the window sill, and Senor Casolani bowed low before him, purely in sarcasm, however, and politely said:

"Permit me to introduce myself as Senor Casolani, and to hope that Senor Clayton is well."

"Thanks, awfully," replied Jimmy as he looked up from his paper and back again.

"You may have heard of me?" continued the guerrilla, secretly admiring the other's coolness, though it stung him at the same time.

"Y-e-s. You are the infernal murderer and outlaw who has been prancing through this part of the country for the last seven or eight years. Yes, I have heard of you. In fact, I was sent down here to make your better acquaintance, and I am glad you have called."

"The usual semiannual payment is due, I believe," suggested the man as his eyes began to burn in a way to make old Huabasco's flesh creep.

"And likewise something else," grimly replied Clayton.

"I do not understand the senor."

"No? Well, if I should tell you to get out of here, would you understand that?"

It was evident to Casolani that he had a man of mettle to deal with, and there was a smile on his face as he thought of how he would make the Americano beg for his life and lick the dust off the floor before he was through with him.

"Does the senor wish to insult me?" asked the guerrilla gently.

"I couldn't if I wanted to! Look here, Casolini, this thing is played out!"

"You mean—you mean"—

"I mean that if you don't take yourself off and keep away from La Paz I'll kill you like a dog. That's pat, and you don't want to miss it. You've killed scores and robbed hundreds, and think yourself a devil of a fellow, but I'm not afraid of you. There's the door you came in at, and if you are not gone in two minutes I'll kick you out!"

"And now let me have my say," replied the guerrilla in a voice hoarse with passion and with eyes blazing like a mad tiger. "I do not shoot you where you sit because"—

"Because you are a coward at heart," interrupted Clayton.

"Because I admire a brave man. You are game, senor, and I respect you. Let me say, however, that tomorrow I will return and sweep everything here off the face of the earth and carry away your ears in my pocket. Today the mine may work; tomorrow it shall be closed down forever. Today there are 200 living men here; tomorrow all shall be dead or scattered. That is the word of Casolani, senor."

"And I am much obliged to him. Will you walk out or be kicked out?"

The guerrilla walked out and was soon lost to sight in the forest, and old Huabasco whispered to his subordinates:

"Not yet, my children—not yet. The Senor Americano is cool and calm, and there is a sting to his words, but he may be what his countrymen call a bluffer. We must wait another day."

There was but one approach to the mine, and Senor Casolani and his band would come by that road. Men were brought up from the depths of the mine to dig and trench, the electrician laid his wires and the civil engineer planted his dynamite, and for two hours before the guerrillas appeared next day Senor Clayton sat on the same chair with a lever within his reach. Nobody had run away, nor had work been suspended. Everything was going on as usual when fifty or sixty cutthroats came charging down the wide road, yells on their lips and knives in their hands. Senor Clayton looked up and watched, and after a bit his hand reached out and touched the lever. There was an explosion which made the mountain tremble in its bowels. Then he picked up his paper and began reading again.

"My children," said old Huabasco after the excited people had counted up the dead and identified Don Casolani among the number, "I told you first we must wait until Senor Casolani had called; then I told you we must wait for today. Now I tell you we need wait no longer. Let us go back to the office and give what the Americanos call three cheers for what the same people also call a jim dandy of a man!"

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it.

In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2625 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

Do Not Feel Fit For Anything

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

Dodging the Dangers of Heredity.

Mrs. Simpson has a profound belief in the doctrine of heredity as she understood it. Mrs. Simpson is colored. She washes for a living. A few years ago her husband passed away, not by death or divorce, but by the simple process of abandonment. He left her to support a little daughter, who is a bright child.

"What is your little girl's name?" asked one of Mrs. Simpson's patrons the other day.

"Helen," replied Susan.

"Oh, indeed! Named after some of your relatives?"

"Wanl, no. I kinder liked the name mahself. But dat ain't what I called her fust."

"No?"

"No. Fust she was chris'ened Anna Cornelia after a pusson what was a partic'lar friend ob mine at dat time, but me an' dat pusson had trouble after dat, an' anyhow she tuk to drink, so I jes' changed dat chile's name fear she might inherit it."—New York Press

Depth of Ocean Cables.

There seems to be no logical reason why cables cannot be laid across any section of the ocean regardless of the depth. Some portions of the Atlantic cable now in use are over three miles below the surface. There is also no logical reason why you should continue to suffer from loss of appetite, belching, flatulency, sour stomach, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia or malaria, fever and ague when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will positively cure you. It has cured thousands of other cases, probably more serious than yours during its half century experience, and this, together with the fact that prominent physicians never hesitate in recommending it, should be sufficient reason for urging you to try it. The genuine has our Private Stamp over neck of the bottle.

Jimmie Torrington's Insanity

By COLIN S. COLLINS

Copyright, 1904, By T. C. McClure

When Jimmie Torrington proposed amateur theatricals as a means of lifting the debt from the Kingston Golf club and possibly supplying a foundation for a building fund the golf club crowd decided that he must be crazy.

This belief was strengthened when Torrington placidly consented to act as property man and made no effort to prevent Herbert Ranson's becoming stage manager. It was well known that Kittie Clausen favored these two of her numerous train of admirers, and Carson voiced the general sentiment when he said:

"Jimmie is insane to permit Ranson to be the stage manager. Of course Ranson will cast himself for the hero and make Kittie the heroine, and Jimmie will be out in the cold."

If Torrington realized his error he gave no sign. On the contrary, he amiably insisted upon taking a greater part of the work upon his own shoulders. It was he who hired such costumes as were needed, secured the scenery and even induced a theatrical friend to promise to make up the players on the night of the performance.

Torrington was the type of man who most enjoyed doing things for others. He was not a handsome chap in spite of his bright eyes and clear complexion. He was rather short of stature (dumpy, Ranson called him), and his favor with Kittie Clausen had been gained by his qualities of mind and disposition. Ranson, on the other hand, was as striking in appearance as the hero of a cheap novel. He made an ideal hero for the play, and even at rehearsals he put a deal of feeling into the love scenes with Kittie.

Apparently Torrington was the only one who did not notice the fervor thrown into the rehearsal, and when it was brought to his attention he merely smiled complacently and remarked that he hoped the speaker might be able to play his part as well on the fateful night.

Gradually this indifference was accepted as a silent admission that Torrington had withdrawn from the contest in favor of his more attractive rival, and when he was not around the men began to speak of "poor" Torrington, while the women marveled at the completeness and suddenness of his surrender.

"DON'T YOU DARE TO SPEAK TO ME LIKE THAT!" SHE PANTED.

But Torrington was not worried. If he was aware of the compassion of the men and the scorn of the women he did not show it, and his moonlike face was always lighted by a peaceful smile as he sat by the prompter's table at rehearsals and watched the proceedings. He acted as useful man about the stage, reading the part of some one unable to attend rehearsal, holding the book as prompter or performing any slight service asked him.

Ranson, who possessed considerable ability as an actor, worked hard with his cast of amateurs, but it is not easy to teach the art of acting, and when in the course of time the repetition of mistakes drove him frantic he gradually lost command over his temper and at the dress rehearsal he had to apologize to the entire company, including Kittie, at various times throughout the evening.

The others absolved him, but that evening Torrington walked home with Kittie, to the great surprise of all. Their astonishment would have been greater had they known that the invitation came from Miss Clausen herself.

But if Miss Clausen had transferred her favors to Jimmie in the hope of finding him a ready sympathizer she was in error. Torrington was sorry that her feelings had been hurt, but he was not prepared to admit that Ranson was to blame. Oddly enough, his defense of Ranson served to increase her sense of injury. When the night of the performance arrived she was scarcely civil to the stage manager and flounced into her dressing room with so curt a "good evening" that even Torrington gasped.

Ranson looked surprised, but there was no time then for explanations, and he went off to the dressing room where the professional actor had installed himself.

The shelf in front of the mirror was covered with sticks of paint of all colors, boxes of powder and the various implements of makeup art, all redolent of the cheap perfume added to conceal the rancidity of the grease used as a foundation.

Ranson, to whom the process of making up was not new, submitted to the heavy applications of paint and powder and hurried back to the stage to superintend the final preparations.

Presently Kittie emerged from her dressing room, and he went toward her. She shrank from him. While she knew that makeup was required, she was not accustomed to seeing men with paint on their faces, and there was something oddly repulsive in the appearance of this man with his heavily lined eyebrows, rouged cheeks and whitened temples. It seemed like a ghastly mask of the man she knew, like the badly painted portrait of an acquaintance.

She could scarcely listen to his expressions of penitence at the loss of his temper the night before and hailed with positive relief her own call to the makeup room.

The darkening of her eyebrows and lashes, the reddening of lips and cheeks and a dash of powder were all that she required, and she escaped from the chair, glad that no more was needed.

During the first act the excitement of playing was too great to permit her to turn her attention to other thoughts. She could not permit her mind to be diverted for an instant from her next speech, the next move across the stage.

With the second act came greater confidence. It was here that the love scenes commenced, but they did not seem the same as at rehearsal. She could not endure the touch of this man, with his paint covered features, and the penetrating odor of bergamot, heavy almost to nausea, sickened her nostrils. The scene was like a nightmare. Even worse was the last act, with its powerful closing scene. The touch of his greasy lips upon her cheek, the unnatural look of the eyes made brilliant by the dark circles of crayon, startled her, and before the curtain rang down she felt that she should scream.

Leaving the stage after the last tableau, Ranson caught her hand.

"Can't you forgive last night, Kitty, and make the 'yes' you have just spoken your answer to the question I have wanted to ask for so long?"

She tore her hand from his grasp.

"Don't you dare to speak to me like that," she panted. "If you do not let me go, I shall call Mr. Torrington."

Ranson threw a black look at Torrington, who was placidly gathering up small stage furnishings, dropped her hand and turned away. Kittie turned back to the stage, and Jimmie's honest, unpainted face never seemed so cherubic.

"Jimmie," she asked softly, "do you want to take me home again tonight?"

"Do I?" repeated Torrington. "I'd like to take you to a home of our own, Kittie."

She smiled demurely. "I think you may," she said.

That night Jimmie Torrington addressed his shaggy terrier. "Wriggles," he said solemnly, "when you find in your canine walk of life a lady dog you love be wise. If she looks with favor on a sleeker coated puppy you just get that puppy to run a dog show. It's a sure cure."

And Wriggles blinked an approving eye.

A DUTY WOMEN OWE THEMSELVES.

"Good actions speak louder than words,' so too, does the testimony of many thousands of women during a third of a century speak louder than mere claims not backed by a guarantee of some kind. That is the reason why the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription are willing to offer $500 reward for women who cannot be cured. Such a remarkable offer is founded on the long record of cures of the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women. If there is an invalid woman, suffering from female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of womb, or from leucorrhea who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription without complete success, the proprietors of that medicine would like to hear from such person—and it will be to her advantage to write them as they offer, in perfect good faith, a reward of $500 for any case of the above maladies which they cannot cure. No other medicine for woman's ills is possessed of the unparalleled curative properties that would warrant its makers in making such an offer.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, at their convent, "Our Lady of the Woods," Carthage, Ohio, use a great deal of Dr. Pierce's medicines; they say, in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce: "We beg to assure you of the great benefit these medicines give our ailing ones. We cannot sufficiently recommend their excellence."

When the druggist says he has something that is as good as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, just tell him, "There's nothing just as good." He says so because he hopes to make a better profit but his own mixtures have not stood the test of long experience and success that Doctor Pierce's medicines have. Then, too, many patent medicines advertised as tonics, contain large quantities of alcohol. Dr. Pierce guarantees that his "Prescription" does not contain a particle of alcohol.

A Story of Evarts.

When William M. Evarts was called to Washington by President Hayes as secretary of state his predecessor, Secretary Fish, gave a dinner in his honor. Mrs. Fish was seated at Mr. Evarts' right hand. During a lull in the conversation Mrs. Fish turned to Mr. Evarts, speaking so clearly as to be heard even at the foot of the table, saying, "Mr. Evarts, I understand that you have sent two of your sons to college."

"Yes, Mrs. Fish."

"They are twin brothers, are they not, Mr. Evarts?"

"Yes, and they have been playmates and schoolmates until now."

"But is it true that you sent one to Harvard and the other to Yale, although you are a Yale graduate yourself?"

"Yes, it is quite true."

"Then I suppose you have done that, Mr. Evarts, so that each of them can take first honors?"

Here Mr. Evarts looked curiously at Mrs. Fish for an instant and then said very earnestly, "Mrs. Fish, you have divined correctly."

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: 'I could not eat because of a weak stomach I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Sold by Ed. D. Misquotations.

"'When Greek meets Greek, then comes the tug of war,'" said a young man.

"You are wrong in that quotation," his companion objected. "That is one of a number of famous sayings that are misquoted always. It is from Nathaniel Lee, and its right reading is, 'When Greeks joined Greeks, then was the tug of war.'

"Another misquotation is, 'It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good.' This is from Thomas Tusser, a sixteenth century worthy, and it should run, 'It's an ill wind that turns none to good.'

"'Out of sight, out of mind,' is from Lord Brooke, but it was 'Out of mind as soon as out of sight' as Lord Brooke wrote it.

"'First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen' should run, 'First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his fellow citizens.' This famous sentence is from a resolution laid before the house of representatives in 1799 by General Richard Lee."

Point Pick-Ups.

POINT, October 11.—Your scribe was not able to get any items written last week on account of so much work, such as apple picking, cider making, butter boiling and a host of other things which had accumulated while attending the re-union of the 55th regiment at Everett, which is a pleasure of the past.

The thirteenth annual re-union of the 55th regiment which was held at Everett on September 29 was one of the best ever held. The numbers were not so great but the interest in the meetings seems to be increasing. There were 19 deaths reported which show that the old comrades are fast passing away, and one comrade's death is reported for the new year already. The death of Capt. James S. Nesbit of Company F. has been reported since the re-union. The re-union association owes its organization to Captain Nesbit; he was its first president. The comrades and citizens of Everett deserve great praise for their patriotism in decorating as they did and for their kindness to our visiting comrades. Quite a number of comrades of other regiments who live in and near Everett took an active part with the old boys of the 55th. The visiting comrades were well taken care of during their stay, and a grand banquet was served by Landlord Thomas Eichelberger to all the boys of the 55th.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Leonard, of Harrisburg and Comrade W. H. Feaster were guests of your scribe and family for several days last week.

Wednesday last was a great day for cider making at the press of George M. Smith, at Spring Hope.. Dunkard Hollow and Cessna were well represented by Emanuel Callahan and Jacob Griffith who had a long wait of it.

Rev. Hillery the new Evangelical preacher held his first meeting at Point Sunday afternoon. Every one that heard him preach spoke well of him as a preacher.

M. C. King, of Bedford, spent a part of Friday and Saturday at Point, gathering his apples for winter use.

The death of George B. Studebaker a little over a week ago cast a gloom over our whole community, as every body was a friend of his. I don't know of a boy that had so many sympathizing friends since his sickness which dates back some three years. When he was shocked by lightning in a potato patch, where he was riding a horse while C. W. Blackburn was plowing the potates, he was unconscious for several hours and was never well after that. The bereaved friends have our sincere sympathy in their sorrow.

J. E. Taylor, our teacher, is getting along finely with our school. Some of the scholars think him a little too strict, but strictness is what our school has been in need of for quite a number of years.

Mrs. Emma Hadden, of Conemaugh, and Mrs. Weyant, of Jefferson county, were welcome callers at our sanctum on Saturday.

Miss Laura Perdue is working in Windber for a few weeks.

Mrs. Susan Mussleman returned last week from a week's visit to her old home in Spruce Hollow.

C. W. Blackburn had a stone hauling on Saturday; he got a nice lot of stone hauled for the wall of his new barn which is to be put up this fall yet. HOOKER.

New Paris News.

NEW PARIS, October 11.—Espy C. Manges, of Somerset county, is now a resident of our village.

The cider mill of A. J. Crissman was well patronized last week on account of the storm which blew down the winter apples. The largest load drawn to the press by one horse was that of J. C. Shriner, which produced 134 gallons of cider.

Among the guests that visited in this vicinity not long since were Mrs. Thomas Hoover, of Drain, Oregon; T. M. Cessna and daughters Ethel and Mildred, of Burnt Cabins, and Cyrus Baneigh, of Johnstown.

Chester A. Ridenour and Miss Margaret Parsons, of Salem, Huntingdon county, were united in marriage by Rev. M. L. Wilt on September 30.

The following is the U. B. church directory for the ensuing year: Presiding elder, Rev. S. W. Keister; pastor, Rev. J. A. Dick; trustees of church, John Wayde, G. W. Blackburn, Sr., A. B. Corle, S. P. Suter and Jackson Crissman; class leader, S. B. Cuppett; stewards, W. D. Sleek, Hall Davis and S. B. Cuppett; president of Young People's Christian Union, S. E. Adams; vice president, W. M. Moore; secretary, Miss Fredricka Crissman; treasurer, Eugene Cuppett; superintendent of Sabbath school, J. A. Cuppett; assistant superintendent, S. E. Adams; secretary, A. P. Penrose; treasurer, A. D. Ling; librarians, Charles Ling and Miss June Blackburn; teachers, G. W. Blackburn, Sr., W. M. Moore, H. M. Ridenour, Prof. J. W. Barney, Miss Nellie Blackburn and Mrs. Jackson Crissman; organist, Miss Nellie Blackburn; assistant organist, Miss Pearl Suter.

On October 7, Mrs. Grace A. Kinzey, wife of Russell Kinzey, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Corle, aged 30 years, six months and 10 days. She was a consistent member of the U. B. church for several years. She leaves a husband, parents, a brother at home, and Mrs. R. E. Dull to mourn her sudden departure. Her funeral, which occurred on Sunday, was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. J. B. Miller, assisted by Rev. J. A. Dick. The pall bearers of this well known lady were J. K. Ridenour, W. M. Moore, Jackson Crissman, A. D. Ling, S. E. Adams and H. M. Ridenour. CAJ.

Rainsburg Ripples.

RAINSBURG, October 11.—Our ball team went to Centreville on Saturday to play their nine the second game. There were plenty of rooters on both sides. During the first six innings the Centreville boys were ahead ten runs and their rooters went wild with enthusiasm, but in the last three innings the Rainsburg boys scored 24 runs, which quieted the Centreville rooters, and the Rainsburg rooters could be heard from mountain to mountain. The score at the close of the nine innings was 31-20 in favor of Rainsburg. The Centreville boys as usual gave our boys a cordial welcome and maintained their manliness in every respect. Our boys felt somewhat sorry for Mr. Walter Hite because all his cheering did not help his side out entirely, but Mr. Hite was ready after the game to help us bear some of our expenses.

J. E. Miller, wife and children while driving from Bedford on Sunday met with an accident. Their horse frightened at an automobile and upset the buggy and threw Mrs. Miller and the children out, bruising them and cutting Mrs. Miller's face. The horse was thrown also and was saved from running off by Mr. Miller's prompt action. TOGO.

Schellsburg Squibs.

SCHELLSBURG, October 12.—Mrs. Lile Egolf, Mrs. Charles Colvin and Mrs. George Colvin expect to start today for St. Louis, to take in the sights at the exposition.

Mrs. M. R. Otto returned home yesterday from Dutch Corner, where she had been visiting for several days at the home of Nicholas Easter.

Mrs. Thomas Reighard and son George, and Mr. Russell, of near Imlertown, were the guests of Thomas Rock and wife on Saturday and Sunday.

George B. Sleek, Esq., of New Paris, spent a short time in our village on Monday.

Miss Pearl Wolf left on Monday for Pittsburg, where she has secured a position.

Quite a number of Schellsburg people took in the fair.

Mrs. Lile Egolf while tending the fair lost a pin containing her husband's picture. It has not been heard of yet.

Mrs. Martha Rock is sojourning with friends near Imlertown.

Defiance Dots.

DEFIANCE, October 11.—David Ritchey, of Six Mile Run, is repairing the old Sweet and Brown store building where the Kenmar Coal company expects to open a supply store.

John Rickard, who was burned out at Coaldale several weeks ago, moved into the house recently vacated by J. A. Simmons, and A. C. Householder, of North Point, has taken up his quarters in the house vacated by W. J. McMillen.

Mr. Greist, of Wynburn, was in town last Tuesday arranging matters concerning the opening of a store for the Kenmar Coal company.

We are pleased to see that John H. Little, who had been on the sick list for a week, is able to be out again.

I had not the pleasure of attending the local institute at Langdondale but I am told that it was the liveliest session of the season. All the teachers on Six Mile Run, including the Coaldale borough teachers, were present except Misses Weisel, Greathead, Foor and Felton. The next session will be held at Defiance on October 22.

The water line from the large spring to the school building is connected and the boiler and wash bowls are now supplied with pure spring water.

The attendance at the high school for the month just closed was 100.

It is rumored here that Judith mine and the Riddlesburg furnace are to be started soon, but we are assured that it is not for political effect.

We are informed through the men who received it that one of our Republican brethren has been rather liberal in supplying some of our men with rum, one man having received a quart. It is bread our people need more than rum. One dollar, the price of a quart, would pay a doctor's visit and might be the means of saving a life while the quart might mean the loss of a life. And yet our boys and girls are told that this is clean politics.

Lysinger umbrellas are liked by everybody—50 cents to $3

Why Men Wear the Reliable Regent Shoes

B. F. Mann writes that the Regent shoes he got from me when in Bedford two years ago are still doing good service. He has worn them almost constantly. They are as shapely as when new—and without a break.

That's a feature of the Regent—they hold their shape and comfort to the end. That's why men like them.

Some Regent hints:

Regents for men and boys—shell cordovan. bals, bluchers, and congress, tip and plain toe: solid oak inner and outer soles Patent kid: winter and summer weight, heavy and light soles. Box calf and kid: leather lining heavy soles for winter. Widths D, E, and EE. Prices $3 $3 25, $3.50, and $4.

Felts for farmers, and splendid rubber boots, and all warm waterproof footwear can now be seen here in fine array.

Come and see. Be ready for King Winter when he comes.

CLAYTON DIEHL, Teacher.

Salemville Siftings.

SALEMVILLE, October 12.—The farmers are now working at their corn The corn that was standing in the storm last week was stripped of its leaves, making it unfit for feed.

Everything is suffering for want of rain. The wheat is not doing as well as it might Corn is too dry to husk, many of the small streams are dry and the wells and springs are failing.

A valuable horse owned by Howard Baker died last week.

The German Seventh Day Baptists of this place will hold their annual love feast Saturday evening, October 15.

Supt. J. Anson Wright visited some of the schools of the township last week. He reports good work done as far as can be judged so early in the season.

The schools of this township will have closed their first month by Friday evening Judging from the good attendance so early in the season and the interest shown by all, we predict a profitable school year. Friday evening, October 14, the directors will meet with the teachers at New Enterprise for the purpose of discussing topics of interest relating to school work. The teachers will also organize a local institute to continue during the winter.

J. Milton Snyder and wife, of Altoona, spent a few days with Mr. Snyder's parents and relatives last week. The Salemville band gave them a royal serenade Saturday evening. Mr. Snyder is a son of Rev. and Mrs. David Snyder. He spent his boyhood days at home, then he secured a position in Altoona as painter and paper hanger. He has grown into usefulness and today is one of Altoona's successful business men.

The Blymyer Hardware Co. have now in their store the largest and best assortment of Stoves in Bedford. They have the exclusive agency for the celebrated Cinderella and Albion Stoves. Prices are right. It will pay to call and see this stock. sept30w4
